Too Much of a Good Thing

Two Much of a Good Thing:

Always in the heated term complaint is heard of the waste of water by indiscriminate street sprinking with hose. Now, before the thing becomes worse, is a good time for the Clity Water Board to step in and prevent the nuisance from assuming its usual proportions this summer. Street sprinkling is a good thing within reasonable bounds, but already the streets in some portions of the city are daily reduced to a condition of mud, and sprinkling is kept up from the middle of the afternoon to late at night, often regardless of the rights or comfort of pedestrians or vehicles. The practice is the cause of a good deal of profanity.

The LaBelle Glass Works. The LaBelle Glass Works.

It is said on the best authority that there is no foundation for the report that stockholders in the LaBelle Glass Company who object to the proposition now before them, will be bought out. On the contrary, it is absolutely certain that not one share will be purchased. The project must fail unless every stockholder agrees to it. It is to be hoped, however, that wiser counsels will prevail, and a liberal spirit will move all parties to accept the less of two evils, and as a joyous result the LaBelle Glass Works shall soon be in full blast; giving the comforts of life to many families now destitute, and benefitting directly and indirectly the whole-community.

Burkett Wins.

The three mile races at the Chapline street rink last evening was witnessed by almost as large an audience as the former contest between Thompson and Burkett. Several Steubenville people were down. The race was skated in one three-mile heat. Jesse Burkett, of this city, and Jacob Thompson, of Steubenville, were the contestants. When Burkett beat Thompson recently there were cries of "solit rice." He beat him again last night, leading him by half a lap throughout, and could have increased the lead had it been desirable.

History and tradition hands down few worthier examples than that of bestowing a lifting and enduring tribute to the departed. The old masters in sculpture were ever wont to emulate each other in were ever wont to emulate each other in the delineation of imaginary ecclesiastical beings, angels, cheruts, &c. &c. while the life-size forms of the departed, armored knights, ideal objects, armorial crests and sacred symbols iound willing service at the shrine of genius. Tombs, mosoleums, vaults and catacombs were rendered singularly artistic and imposing by the sculptor's chisel. But the atmospheric action apon the finer tracings and carvings in succeeding years demonstrated that more desirable material be secured and the adoption of more massive columns and artistically shaped blocks of enduring granite capable of resisting the storms of a thousand years. These are now universally the preference, designed in endless shapes and emballished with graceful dies, caps, turrets, &c.
